He who introduced golf to the United States and fostered it from an infant to the giant sport it less become was the late John Reid, Sr., a native of Dunfermline, Fifeshire, Scotland, but a resident of America since 1885. There is a pleasing tradition about the manner that Mr. Reid and his associates started the golf hair rolling in America, although the golf bail rolling in America, although he nor those with him never anticipated it would become such a magnet in the short time it has been played.

COACH EUSTIS PLACES TED CANN IN BACKFIELD

Refore his death Mr. Reid said that a friend of his, returning from a visit to Scotland, brought back a bag of clubs and a dozen or so balls. No one ever knew what he expected to do with them, but somehow Mr. Reid found out his friend had the articles. That was enough for Mr. Reid. He immediately began sowing the seed of golf discontent.
